Russian teaching method at CREF

Group lessons:

For a more sociable and interactive environment, you should choose to have group lessons. At the rate of four Russian lessons a day, five days a week, in total 20 hours of lessons per week, you will progress very quickly.

We guarantee you:

- Small-sized groups. So that everyone has enough opportunity to speak and practice their speaking skills, group sizes are limited to 6 people, sometimes less. All groups are made up of students from the same level. Students are assigned to a level according to the results of their assessment test.

- Ongoing assessments which allows you to track your progress. You can complete level A1 in 80 hours (4 weeks of lessons) and, if you are a total beginner from the moment you arrive in Russia. You can complete level A2, in about 160 hours.

- A course centered on communication. Starting from your first Russian lessons at CREF, whatever your level is, you will be engaged in communication, biased towards speaking more than writing. Grammar won't be overlooked of course, but it will be dealt with as a tool to help you in your communication and comprehension skills.

- Instruction and individual monitoring by rigorous and proficient teachers, even in group lessons.

- Exclusive teaching material developed by our teachers at CREF especially for Russian as a foreign language.

Our individual courses:

Do you have specific restrictions, a busy schedule or personal obligations which make certain demands of your time? Or do you simply wish to learn Russian at your own pace?

You should consider choosing individual courses. Whether you want content which is intensive, more in depth, or perhaps with less grammar, or more writing, more speaking practice... You decide your own program with our program manager and your language course in Russia can be done at your own pace.

We guarantee you:

- Ongoing assessments which allows you to track your progress.

- Your progress will be faster than in group lessons; the teacher is devoted 100% to your needs and concentrates on your specific difficulties . You can therefore expect to reach your objectives faster.

- A course centered on communication and/or grammar: depending on your priorities and in consultation with you, the instruction will be channeled into the areas where you wish to improve your skills.

- Exclusive teaching material developed by our teachers at CREF, which can be adapted according to your particular needs.

- All the courses are adapted by the teachers to suit the needs of each student. You will be asked to specify for us your main areas of interest so that that the course may be adapted accordingly.

- The number of lessons you want and the schedules are completely edible. Our teachers can even come to your home or workplace if you are unable to come to CREF.
